AN EXTINCT SPECIES.
A lecturer in Hastings inquired dramatically: "Can anyone in this room tell me of a perfect man?"
"There was a dead silence."
"Has anyone," he continued, "heard of a perfect woman?"
Then a patient-looking little woman rose up at the back of the room and answered:
"There was one. I've often heard of her, but she's dead now. She was my husband's first wife."

AN ORANGE BROKE UP THE SHOW

"There was great excitement in the Chinese theater on Liliha street shortly after 11 o'clock last night.
It seems that the audience was not very much struck with the performance. The present price of eggs being a little too high for the purpose, one of the Celestials in the house had prepared himself with a lot of oranges which were more over-ripe than they were marketable. Ah Fong, for that happens to be the name of the Chinese performers' unfriendly critic, managed to land a few of the ripe and luscious fruit on the stage, much to the inconvenience of the talent. One of the yellow spheres took the almond-eyed villain of the play right between the eyes.
Upon this a policeman, who was present to quell disturbances, called to two other officers outside and started to take the orange-thrower out of the theater.
The audience objected. They rose from their seats as one man and fell upon the three officers. The play came to a sudden termination and actors and audience united to remove the police from the edifice. Even the villain who had just received a ripe orange between his painted eyes, jumped to the floor and wanted to take a hand at punching the police.
The officers drew their clubs—they had large clubs—and literally fought their way to the door. So great was the resistance offered that they were obliged to lay about with their sticks, and more than one Oriental head will ache for days to come. The police held on to their prisoner and finally got him to the door.
Outside the Chinese again set upon the police, and again the useful sticks came into play. Many a Pake regrets encountering those hard sticks.
Two men of the crowd were arrested and taken to the police station together with the orange-thrower. They were charged with attempting to obstruct the course of justice.
The orange thrower and the others had to put up $700 between them to keep from spending the night in the lock-up. Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth arrested fifteen Chinese last night at a late hour for gambling, running a domino game. Each man put up $15 bail.

Horace Annesley Vachell says that the irreverence of the children of the West is partly the fault of the pastors. He adds: "I remember a funeral sermon preached by a Presbyterian minister upon a dead child. The child's playfellows were in church and attentive listeners to a discourse mainly biographical. The preacher concluded: 'I can see him—yes, I can see our dear little friend,' he looked upward, and the eyes of the children were immediately fixed upon the ceiling of the church. There he is, corraled in heaven, playing about with all the other little angels. This allusion to the coral, that homely feature in the western landscape, appealed forcibly to the imagination of the children, but surely the ridiculous was too perilously near the sublime."
